

Of course she got all that harassment. Girls always get judged more harshly than boys online.

The bystander

Further discussion questions:

- Do you agree or disagree? Why?
- What pressures do you think girls face online that are different to boys, and vice versa?
- Where do those pressures come from?
- Do girls judge girls or boys more harshly? Who do boys judge more harshly? Why?

If my photo was posted on the 'hot or not' page, people wouldn't say anything mean about it. If they did, I wouldn't care anyway.

The boy who posted the photo

Further discussion questions:

- Do you agree or disagree? Why?
- Do boys get treated differently online than girls? Why?
- If this did happen to the boy, and he received unkind comments, do you think he would not care? How might it make him feel?
- Why would someone say they 'didn't care' about receiving online sexual harassment, even if they did?
- If a boy or girl is LGBT+, does that change how they are treated online?

People are saying it was my fault and I should have known my photo would end up on that site. How could I have guessed that would happen? Why are people saying these things about me? Maybe they're right...

The victim

Further discussion questions:

- 'I should have known my photo would end up on that site.' Do you agree or disagree? Why?
- Why do you think people feel the need to post unwanted and unkind comments online?
- Why do people feel that victim-blaming is acceptable behaviour in this situation?
- Blame versus responsibility. What is the difference? How does the victim's experience highlight this difference?
